TO VOTERS, OLD AND NEW

In a sane moment the state and county authorities should decide to economize, the resolution would be hailed with intense gratification by every voter who has a voice in the election or designation of the successors in office. Much has been said and written recently about the high cost of living, but the argument does not seem to have appealed to the men holding elective offices, since it is one of their sacred attributes that, as soon as a man is elected, he instantly changes his character and becomes the boss of the one whom he a month before referred to as his master. Regrettably it must be said that public officials are no longer public servants but public dictators who usually are intent on feathering their own nests at the expense of the people who elect them. Experience shows that public officials in Nevada vie with one another in conjuring heavier and more onerous charges than what occurred to their predecessors in power. Evidently the thought is borne in the minds of office holders that the public en masse is a good joke and that per capita it is a fit subject for sweating.

"The Blood Sweating Behemoth" of the late lamented Phineas T. Barnum should be adopted as the trademark of the taxpayer during the coming campaign. The Behemoth fittingly illustrates the man with the vote who elects the man with a pull and without a conscience to a position where he will become the master and make his slaves sweat to earn blood money. If any effort is to be put forth to reduce the cost of living this is the time to initiate the movement. Begin at the head of the ticket and swat and scratch until you have arranged to your own satisfaction a slate that will stand for some more tangible form of ante-election day than the mellifluous notes of the sharper whose dulcet voice conceals the shark intent on separating the taxpayer from his money. Begin at home with the town and county political allies. Begin by registering. Don't neglect this duty. Do it now.

Men and women should enroll their names at once, for the number of registrations will decide the future of Tonopah and the state. Women voters are urged to give the subject earnest consideration. The taxes in Tonopah are simply appalling. For each $100 worth of property earned by you this administration of the county has decreed that you give up the price of the best pair of shoes father or mother can find in the market, or sufficient to buy the baby a complete outfit from the top of its dainty head to the tips of the little pink toes that have not yet begun to callous with the fatigue of walking.

After registering and winning recognition as a voter go to the primaries and vote for the delegates whose business records show they are trustworthy and honorable, and capable of selecting candidates in whom the confidence of the public may be reposed.

FLEA FOR THE DOGS

ISN'T it about time that the inept act of an hysterical board of old women providing for the muzzling of dogs be revoked and sane treatment substituted? Nothing is to be gained by prolonging the torture through the days of tropical heat. When a poor dog cannot even loll his tongue or refresh his parched lips with a slaving and refreshing caress it is time to do something and try to find if there is not an atom of fellow feeling in the breasts of those who are afflicted with a rabid desire to madden the dumb brutes that call us master. Governor Boyle announces that the dread scourge of rabies has run its course and that there is no longer any fear of hydrophobia. The only ones the Bonanza knows were in danger of infection at any time were the phobists who persuaded somebody in authority to punish every house owned dog in the state while every cur continued his vagabond forays without molestation. Whoever heard of a cur ending life under the club or bullet of the poundkeeper? There was nothing to be gained by killing off the canine outcast so long as responsible owners of household pets were willing to ransom the family pet.

The muzzling law—not meaning the press gagging system—must have been contrived in the interest of manufacturers. Under threat of sudden and violent death if the muzzles were not forthcoming, every dog soon was decorated with a birdcage that well nigh maddened the most self respecting animals. The sales extorted thousands of dollars from the pockets of citizens and the order of the rabies board was enforced in every town and hamlet, while in the country where the muzzling might have had some sense in the application no attempt was made to compel the farmers to do as their town brethren. This odious discrimination may be held responsible for the prolongation of the rabies scare, but now that the governor says the danger is past and the epidemic almost eliminated no time should be lost in releasing the dogs from the obnoxious burdens they have been forced to carry around.

CLIPPED AND CREDITED

Mr. Wilson's thoughts on such situations as Mexico read beautifully. They apply abominably.—East Liverpool (Ohio) Review.

The boys who have answered the call to Mexico will forego the pleasure of having the Mexicans teaching them the first rudiments of Spanish, which is "poco tiempo," as they have already been well versed in this part of the Mexican language by the administration's "poco tiempo" (watchful waiting).—Sioux Falls (S. D.) State Forum.

The horses of the Mexican cavalry are said to be suffering for want of hay. If Carranza is a real patriot he will not hesitate his whisker crop.—Cleveland Plain-Dealer.

It is only fair to the Mexicans to say that insulting the American flag and getting away with it is a stunt at which they cannot be best.—New Orleans States.

"Know-it-alls" who declare the Mexican job would have been easier had it been started a few years ago forget that war is weakening instead of strengthening the Mexicans.—Harrisburg Patriot.
